PICKING UP WELFARE CHECK

(Freeman Photo)

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

Editor's Note—This is the first of a two-part series detailing some of the fraudulent welfare practices which have been uncovered by Ulster County Department of Social Services new fraud bureau.

Fraudulent welfare recipients BEWARE! Ulster County has moved into a 24-hour per day surveillance of suspected cheats and has, in less than six weeks, uncovered enough chicanery to more than pay, in savings, the salary of its new fraud investigator. In fact, some persons who have been obtaining funds fraudulently, and apparently fearing their deception might be uncovered, have voluntarily had their welfare cases closed.

Among cases uncovered in the past year were:

- A woman, who received aid-to-dependent children, for her alleged pre-schooler who turned out to be a dog! She merely filled in a mail-order type birth certificate with the name and age of her dog, giving her pet the same last name as her own.

- A fairly well-known prostitute who took herself off the relief rolls when she feared that the discovery might lead to her losing custody of her child. Police had no formal complaints against her under which to press charges but, fearing the welfare fraud investigators might press such a complaint, she withdrew voluntarily from seeking further financial aid from the county.

- A gambler, making easy money in one of the rackets, took the same tack, for much the same reason—fear of being exposed by the fraud unit.

- Perhaps one of the most common types of fraud involves the alleged "missing" husband of a woman with children who receives welfare funds to support her youngsters but whose husband returns to her home nights and weekends. In the past, this was fairly easily accomplished unless neighbors or police tipped off the Department of Social Services.

Now such women and their husbands are under the watchful eye of the fraud unit, which is on the move constantly, even if it means being on the job at 3 a.m. to catch someone. Under the new set-up, the Department of Social Services is working closely with all local police agencies including the city and state police and the sheriff's department as well as the State Department of Desertion and Location. The latter agency, through the use of computers, is able to often trace missing spouses anywhere in the country.

The welfare department, which in the past often attempted to have clients make restitution when deceptions were uncovered, is now, once having turned the matter over to the police, stepping aside with the police following through with either arrest, restitution or possibly turning cases over to the district attorney's office and grand jury investigation.

Under the public assistance program all persons who are employable must pick up their checks at the New York State Employment Agency where they are also screened for jobs. If after being interviewed, they turn down job offers indicating they prefer to be on public assistance, this information is relayed to the Social Services Department for reevaluation.

"We don't try and put stumbling blocks in front of people," Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt S. Kramer said last week but, "we do try and prevent the public from being fleeced."

All unemployable persons, such as the disabled, the pregnant and elderly receive their assistance checks in the mail.

Kramer said that assistance checks stolen from mail boxes also have been a problem and he strongly urges that persons cashing welfare checks "know their endorser." He said that many supermarkets employ cameras to take pictures of check cashers and banks are careful to seek proper identification but many small store owners have not been sufficiently watchful and have cashed stolen checks unwittingly.

Next: In the last of a two-part series on welfare fraud, the Freeman will reveal Tuesday, the almost unbelievable coincidence that led to the uncovering of a welfare scheme that involved three persons and a case of impersonation.

GENEVA (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko admitted differences today but said their Geneva talks were fruitful and that both sides are moving towards the removal of outstanding differences.

Kissinger and Gromyko, standing side by side, made statements to newsmen after five hours and 15 minutes of talks in Kissinger's hotel suite during which they tried to align their rival policies in the Middle East and on other matters. They had engaged earlier in sharp exchanges but made no mention of this today.

Gromyko spoke first, in Russian with English interpretation, and said of many issues discussed he and Kissinger found their views close and in some cases coinciding.

"But I will not divulge a secret, and I am sure the Secretary of State will agree, that there are questions on which our views do not exactly coincide," he said. "But it is necessary to work in the direction of removing these differences. The United States and Soviet Union have covered a great distance in a positive direction."

Kissinger, replying, said "I confirm the foreign minister's evaluation of our meeting." He said "I shall report to the president that we are moving within the spirit of previous agreements."

Both men stressed the importance of the Vladivostok agreement in November between President Ford and Soviet Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev setting out guidelines for a new strategic arms limitation agreement. He said he and Gromyko had attempted to bring their views "into closer harmony" on issues where they did not coincide.

Kissinger was flying almost immediately to London for talks with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and then flying to Zurich Tuesday noon for lunch with the Shah of Iran before going onto Paris that evening. Wilson flew back from Moscow today.

The question was whether Russia would try to obstruct Kissinger's next step toward a Middle East peace agreement or help him. A senior American official said that so far the Russians had been neither very helpful nor notably constructive, attacked Kissinger's mission last week in veiled terms.

Kissinger's first meeting with Gromyko Sunday night was described by informed sources as businesslike punctuated by some sharp exchanges.

Gromyko, wearing a dark suit, arrived promptly at 10.30 a.m. at the Intercontinental Hotel and was taken directly to Kissinger's top floor suite. Gromyko gave a gesture of mock surprise when he saw a group of waiting newsmen and television cameras, but he made no statement.

Before meeting Gromyko, Kissinger conferred for 20 minutes with Roger Gallopin, President of the Executive Council of the International Committee of the Red Cross.

Gallopin assured Kissinger the Red Cross will continue its efforts to get some news of the 2,300 Americans still missing or unaccounted for in Indochina.

Frank Sieverts, a special assistant at the State Department dealing with those missing in action, attended the meeting.

President Considering European Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is considering a trip to Europe, possibly in April, an administration source said today.

Sources said Ford is expected to travel to several European countries, including Great Britain, France and West Germany. He also has accepted an invitation from Yugoslavia's President Tito.

"Such a trip is under consideration," the administration source said.

The President also is expected to visit China in either October or November, picking up an invitation he has had for several months. As House GOP leader, Ford saw China with a congressional delegation in 1972 after then President Richard Nixon's historic trip.

Administration sources said that if the President decides to travel it will be after Easter.

While a final decision has not yet been made, sources said Ford was expected to spend Easter at Palm Springs, Calif., and from there make side trips on the West Coast to campaign for his economic recovery program.

Ford was criticized Sunday by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., for taking his program on the road instead of staying in Washington and working with Congress.

"It is in Washington that legislation takes place and I say most respectfully to the President: Come home and work with the Congress and see if we can't get something done," Humphrey said (on NBC's "Meet the Press").

Like Humphrey, Sen. Robert Byrd, the assistant Democratic leader, criticized recent conflicts between the President and Congress. "Both should cooperate and work together in the interest of the American people," Byrd said.

There was no indication Ford would change his strategy.

To celebrate George Washington's birthday today, the President participated in a ceremony unveiling a medallion in his honor at the Masonic Temple. Ford, a 33rd degree Mason, is the 14th President to belong to a Masonic order.

Afterwards he met with Gov. James Longley of Maine.

The President spent a relaxed weekend, going to the Burning Tree Country Club on both Saturday and Sunday to warm up for the pro-am celebrity golf tournament in Florida next week, in which he will play with comedians Bob Hope and Jackie Gleason.

Ford played Sunday with a friend from California, Leon Parma, vice president of Teledyne Corp., a computer firm. He limited the game to nine holes and wound up the last two playing in the rain.

Legislature to Protest Fire Training Cut

KINGSTON "I don't know who is telling the truth but the volunteer firemen are upset," County Legislator George Barthel (D-Dist. 7) told the county board last week midst a controversy over whether money for fire training has been cut from Gov. Hugh Carey's budget.

Following lengthy discussion, the Ulster County Legislature voted 24 to 7 to protest the elimination of fire training services as proposed in the Carey budget. Two legislators were absent.

The resolution, sponsored by 11 GOP legislators, expressed concern that Carey had eliminated the Office of Local Government from his budget; that omission of funds for that office would wash out jobs of state fire instructors and close the state fire academy at Montour Falls. The cutback also would mean transferring school fire inspections from fire officials to the education department.

Opposition to the resolution came from James Gilpatrick (D-City) who called the measure "misleading." He said he had checked with the speaker of the Assembly, the governor's office and the Office of Local Government and found that the latter's "duties will be transferred to the Department of State to assist in fire training."

Gilpatrick moved to table the resolution and Minority Leader Dr. Gerald P. Gorman (D-City) seconded the move.

Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8) countered immediately saying that what Gilpatrick claimed was "not so. The money has been cut and Ulster County will lose 400 hours a year of firemanic training," he said.

The move to table the resolution was defeated along a party line vote.

Savago said he learned that the Montour Falls facility had already been declared surplus property and suggested that without proper training of firemen, insurance rates would go up. He also predicted that with the education department "policing themselves, the kids will be in jeopardy."

Gilpatrick and others also objected to certain wording in the resolution in which it was stated that there is "a complete lack of concern by Carey for the property and lives of people of the state." Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6) said he could not subscribe to that, nor could Eugene Perry (D-City) and Eugene Houck (D-Dist. 7).

Ammo Cache Off Rikers Island

New York Marine Unit Patrolman Clifton Walker inspects two-man life raft which was found with ammunition in it in the waters off Rikers Island late Sunday. An anonymous call tipped police that five men, armed with shotguns, were in a rubber raft headed for the island. At about the same time, a reputed member of the Black Liberation Army jumped a guard at the City House of Detention on the island, but was overcome, according to Correction Department spokesman. ## Ulster Town Board Approves Bids

TOWN OF ULSTER
The Ulster Town Board Thursday night approved the $4,625 bid of Kingston Chrysler Plymouth Inc. for a new patrol car for the town police department.

The vehicle, a 1975 Plymouth Fury, will be delivered immediately. Unsuccessful bidders were Berzal Chevrolet, Jerry Martin Pontiac and Johnson Ford.

funds to purchase red lights and sirens for the car, which will be painted to conform to new state regulations.

Town Clerk Robert Morehouse reported that the board has surveyed the furniture and equipment needs for the new town hall near the intersection of Route 209 and Neighborhood Road, and will open bids at the town hall on Thursday, Feb. 27. Work on the town hall is progressing on schedule. The foundation has been completed and flooring will be completed by the weekend.

Herbert Winnie, owner of Creek Locks Mobile Home Park on Creek Locks Road, applied for permission to install an additional trailer there. The board will set up a meeting at a later date with Winnie and homeowners in the area to discuss the matter.

In other action, the board: • Named Gary McConnell to be a member of the town recreation commission.

• Proclaimed March 3-9 as "Employ the Older Worker Week" in the town.

Authorized a street light at the intersection of Elmwood Street and Birch Street in Forest Glen Park.

• Instructed Highway Superintendent Edgar Elliott to investigate complaints of a drainage problem on Otis Street.

• Turned down a request from the Vibrations Motorcycle Club for use of the town park for a motorcycle road rally involving 200 machines in July.

Recommendations Made In Onteora

BOICEVILLE
A laymen's advisory committee has recommended that the Onteora Central School District move the central administration out of the Boiceville school and buy a site for a future middle school.

Chairman Richard E. Odenwald and the Building Needs Committee, in a final report to the board of education, also recommended that the district provide local funds to improve the space gained at Boiceville by moving the central administration.

Other recommendations by the committee included:

• Using the site purchased for the new middle school (grades 6-8) for the relocated central administration and as an athletic space for junior and senior high students until the school is built.

• Using the old West Hurley school building as the central administrative office if and when the new middle school is built.

• Giving the high school administration and staff the time and money to explore different methods of organizing the present central school to accommodate the increased student load expected in the near future and also to permit a separation of seventh and eighth graders from students in 9-12.

• Halting new building or additions on the present central school site due to its limited usable outdoor space and poor drainage. "We believe the size of the central school is already too large and it would not serve the long range interests of education in the district to expand this facility still further."

• Formulating yearly enrollment projections to see whether new growth in the district will support a middle school in the future.

The committee said it had reached three major conclusions. The first was a recommendation for a 1,000-pupil middle school at a site removed from the present secondary school. Secondly, the committee said that "despite the fact that more space is needed at the elementary and secondary schools, present enrollment projections, existing state aid formulas and the current economic situation will not support a major building program at this time."

Finally, the committee recommended an interim solution to the immediate space problem by separating junior and senior high school students within the present facility by separating and reorganizing the present curriculum.

Factors involved in its decisions, the committee said, included an indication that the population of the Catskills and of Ulster County will continue to grow during the present century.

Births have declined in recent years but school census figures show a steady migration into the district, the committee noted.

PSC Resolution Not Accepted

KINGSTON
Anticipated action by the Ulster County Legislature on a proposal to oppose the Public Service Commission's electrical rate plan, was postponed Thursday in order that members of the county board have more time to study the issue.

County Legislator Richard D. Nace's "late" resolution to oppose PSC, was not accepted by the county's legislative and rules committee, in keeping with last year's legislative decision not to accept any late resolutions other than those that were in the nature of an emergency.

Nace wants the board to oppose "vigorously" the PSC's plan to reduce electric rates for electrical heating customers at the expense of all other electric customers, and has resubmitted the resolution for action at the board's March 13 meeting.

The Town of Ulster Republican, who represents District 2, called the PSC's plan "discriminatory and unfair."

Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company, which with three other downstate utilities, would come under the PSC ruling, has already expressed its opposition to reducing the base unit charges per kilowatt hour for residential space heating customers and increasing the base unit charges per kilowatt-hour for all other customers.

It was on Feb. 5 that PSC ruled that Central Hudson, Consolidated Edison, Orange and Rockland County, and Long Island Lighting Company file revised rates.

HEIDI FULFILLS DREAM

(UPI)

Hawaii Trip Answer to Her Dreams Cancer-Stricken Heidi Rides That Horse

HONOLULU (UPI) — Dying of cancer but her spirit soaring, 14-year-old Heidi Biggs has managed to fulfill her dream of riding a horse. For good measure, she waded through hundreds of messages from well-wishers.

Although weak and very ill, Heidi was able to mount a tan palomino Sunday with just a little help. She rode for an hour in the rural town of Waimanalo and went for a jaunt on a mountain horse trail.

Heidi had more offers of trips, tours, dinners and horse rides than she could possibly accept. "I really thought it was fun," she said after the horse ride. "I wasn't frightened, but right now I'm feeling pretty tired."

Heidi and her mother, Lucille, of Belleville, Ill., are staying in a hotel overlooking Waikiki beach and surfers plying the waves.

The hotel switchboard was swamped with calls for Heidi, some from out of state.

Heidi's trip to Hawaii, the answer to her dreams, was made possible by persons throughout the United States and Canada who sent donations. She weighs just 54 pounds and doctors give her little more than a month to live — perhaps less.

At the riding stables, three little girls pooled their money to buy Heidi a large white cowboy hat and three horsehead pins which Heidi put on the hat. Her mother said, "Heidi is really thrilled with it."

She and her mother also strolled along Waikiki and took pictures of the surfers. But the girl must rest frequently because she takes large quantities of pain-killing drugs.

Among those calling her hotel room was a doctor who urged Mrs. Biggs to give her daughter the Laetrile treatment, a cancer drug outlawed in the United States.

Mrs. Biggs told him: "I believe and trust God enough that whenever the time comes He'll either heal her or take her to be with Him. I have no doubt about it. I have that much faith."

McHugh — "Awesome Opportunity"

By TIM SCHUSTER

WOODSTOCK — Congressman Matthew F. McHugh (D-27) stopped by the Woodstock law offices of Koplovitz and Warner Saturday afternoon to say thanks to those who helped in his campaign last fall and to set up a liaison office through attorney Josh Koplovitz.

While not maintaining any permanent staff in the town, the move is designed to give area constituents a local outlet for their federally-related matters. He refers to it as a "satellite office."

McHugh also is seeking space in Ellenville (the Chamber of Commerce there has offered space) and New Paltz, which he visited later Saturday.

Rep. McHugh was asked whether he would characterize himself as one of the new breed of reform-minded Democrats in Washington that has captured the attention of the national press.

"The new members in Congress (there are 75 freshmen Democrats) went there with a concern that Congress was not responsive," he added, saying that the ouster of powerful longtime committee chairman was a necessary reform.

"I am awed by the opportunity to be there," said the Ithaca attorney and former Tompkins County district attorney, "but not by the seniority system."

He added that some other senior committee members were challenged without being removed, and that this has served to make them more wary.

Some of these senior members and chairmen had come to regard their power as "personal property," McHugh said.

The congressman said of the 75 freshman Democrats that they constitute a "significant block that can't be ignored. This potential political power as a group was demonstrated, he said, when candidates for committee chairmanships were asked to come before them and explain their views. "Almost all of them came," he pointed out.

Unemployment, recently reported as 8.2 per cent nationwide, has not hit the 27th Congressional District "in general" any harder than the rest of the country, said McHugh, but some parts were quite badly affected. "It's 11 per cent in Sullivan County," he commented, adding that Ulster County, where some 12 per cent of the district's registered voters reside, is above the national average.

"One thing we all agree on is tax relief," he asserted, with the rub coming on the form it is to take. McHugh said that President Ford's proposed 12 per cent tax rebate for 1974 would have only 37 per cent of that rebate going to those earning less than $15,000 a year, about the national median, while the House Ways and Means proposal would have the lower income group receiving 62 per cent of the rebated monies.

Congressman McHugh painted a stark contrast between the administration — proposed five per cent limit on Social Security increases and the administration proposal for another $300 million aid to South Vietnam, stating that this would rob the poor to pay for more "tragic involvement" in Southeast Asia.

"This Congress will not go along with it," he said, terming the Social Security proposal "Basic insensitivity to human beings."

McHugh was a co-sponsor on legislation to oppose the president's program to charge more for food stamps, a bill which the House Committee on Agriculture voted 33-2 to report to the floor, the House voted two-thirds for passage, and the Senate also passed.

He said he would be in favor of having the federal government release more money for public works programs.

Esopus Fishing Restrictions Bid . . . More Study

KINGSTON

A proposal by the county's Conservation Committee to express its opposition to fishing restrictions on part of the Esopus Creek, proposed by the Department of Environmental Conservation was referred back to committee for further study last week.

The decision to study the issue further came after Anthony Bonavist, acting supervisor for fish and wildlife in Region Three of DEC, addressed the afternoon session of the legislature, explaining DEC's intent in proposing some restrictions.

Opposition to the imposition of restrictions originally came from the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County and a resolution to that effect was sponsored by C. Freeman Lasher (R-Dist. 1) for action by the legislature at the recent meeting. After hearing Bonavist, it was Lasher himself who asked that the matter be referred back to committee.

DEC's plan reportedly asked that anglers take three trout, brown, and rainbow, in combination, 12 inches or larger a day and that all other trout be returned to the stream unharmed.

The proposal would be invoked on an experimental basis for control of the 0.8 mile section of Esopus Creek extending from the Five Arches Bridge to, but not including the Chimney Hole. DEC also proposed that bait be limited to artificial lures and flies and that the control be for a three-year period during which fishermen would be interviewed.

Bonavist told the legislators that the growth rate of rainbow and brown trout in the Esopus has been below average but is better than it was but DEC wants to aim for quality and feels there is a nucleus of wild trout in that area of the Esopus, with spawning in feeder streams.

He explained that his department wants the opportunity to allow the fish to grow larger and improve the quality of fish for anglers. He said that the hooking mortality is low on fish placed back in the stream—about seven per cent for a treble hook and less with a single hook.

Bonavist suggested that the program be implemented for three years "to see how it works," adding that it may have an added benefit, bring fishermen into the area over a long period of time.

Lasher said his biggest objection was the use of a treble hook to which Bonavist replied that he would be happy to recommend the use of single hooks only.

If instituted, the area in question would be posted as a special stream management area. That particular portion of the Esopus was chosen, among other reasons, because it runs through lands owned by New York City and that it would be easier for DEC to deal with the city than with individual land owners, Bonavist said.

Schermerhorn to GOP: Government Differs

KINGSTON

Could Abraham Lincoln ever have envisioned the scope of the "federal grab for power" that resulted from the Union victory of 100 years ago when the power of the federal government was pitted against the powers of individual states?

State Sen. Richard E.

Schermerhorn (R-40th Dist.), guest speaker at the Saturday night Lincoln Day dinner of the Ulster County Federation, Women's Republican Clubs, doesn't think so. He told the hundreds attending the event at the Gov. Clinton Hotel that "what passes for constitutional government today—is not the government that our founding fathers fought and died for."

Schermerhorn blamed the courts for what he called federal usurpation of power, saying they have ignored the fact that the constitution places limits on the federal government and reserves other powers for the states.

"Under the guise of civil rights we have lost most of our freedoms. We can no longer hire and fire whom we choose in our own business. We can no longer rent or sell our homes to whom we choose. We can no longer say a simple prayer in schools," Schermerhorn complained.

"We have replaced our gold with paper, our silver with lead and we are spending and taxing ourselves into economic disaster," he predicted adding that "our children have suddenly become the property of the courts and they are placed in buses and carried far from home to achieve a so-called racial balance."

Schermerhorn accuses the people of apathy in timidly permitting politicians and judges to experiment with children. He contended it is the right of parents to control the lives and destinies of their own children—not some politician or judge.

"So while we honor Lincoln today—and deservedly so—" he said, "one must wonder if the individual citizens of the nation would not be better off today if the confederacy had won the war and the principle of state's rights would be the law of the land," he concluded.

SEN. SCHERMERHORN

Penalties Possible of Spill in Rondout

KINGSTON

Most of the No. 2 fuel oil that spilled into the Rondout Creek Saturday from a tank barge docked at the R.K. Ballard terminal on East Strand has been recovered, but the firm that owns the barge still faces civil penalties because of the spill. An estimated 500 to 1,000 gallons of fuel oil leaked from the barge through a four inch by one-quarter inch fracture in the lower bilge knuckle plate, apparently caused by chunks of ice encountered between West Point and Kingston Friday night.

According to Commander Matthew Woods of the United States Coast Guard's Group Staff in Albany, who investigated the oil spill, any leakage of under 10,000 gallons in the Hudson River and its tributaries is considered "minor." Woods said that the oil not recovered would have no adverse ecological impact on the creek or the river.

The leak was discovered at about 7:30 a.m. Saturday. Woods said the Morania Oil Tanker Corp. of New York City immediately contacted the Coast Guard and hired a pollution control firm to remove the oil from the creek.

While the ice in the Rondout Creek helped to prevent the spilled oil from spreading, said Woods, it also prevented "full recovery" of the spillage.

Washington

It has always been difficult not to become maudlin, to resort to clichés, when talking about George Washington.

"The father of his country." "First in war, first in peace, first in the hearts of his countrymen." Well-worn phrases like that.

As if by way of compensation, attempts are made from time to time to knock Washington off the distant, towering pedestal he occupies in American history and bring him down to our own size — or lower.

A few years ago, for example, someone made a humorous analysis of the painstakingly detailed expense account Washington submitted to the Continental Congress after the Revolution. While it showed that the general enjoyed his glass of Madeira, it hardly proved he was anything but a scrupulously conscientious public servant.

Disparaging reference is sometimes made to the fact that Washington was a slaveowner, a member of the aristocratic class — ignoring the humanitarianism of the man, especially when viewed against the context of the times in which he lived — ignoring the very real risk he took in losing everything he had, including his life, in a cause far from universally supported by his fellow colonists.

Such attempts to belittle Washington merely prove the opposite of what they intend. When this man is compared with some of the modern world's revolutionary "heroes" he grows in stature all the more.

Washington never countenanced terrorism against the enemy. He never had a political or ideological opponent shot or imprisoned. He never sought power over anyone — indeed, shunned it. His legacy has been nothing but good.

Even with 200 years of hindsight to benefit them, historians can arrive at no estimate of Washington different from that of his contemporaries: Without him, there would have been no United States of America.

There is simply no other way of putting it.

As Americans approach the Bicentennial, as they restudy the Revolution and its aftermath, it is to be hoped that they will refresh their appreciation of this fact.

Only Washington kept the dream of independence alive in the dark days at the end of 1776, when at one point the Continental Army was reduced to a mere 800 men. Only Washington could have brought the long struggle to its successful conclusion.

Later, when the United States began its experiment under the Constitution, only Washington commanded the affection, respect and confidence needed by its first president to surmount the squabbling rivalries of the nascent political parties and see the infant nation well launched on its course of destiny.

Without George Washington, no United States. What more can possibly be said?

WASHINGTON — The Navy's helicopter fleet is in such poor condition that it is a greater threat to the men on board than to potential enemies.

Yet the Navy would have to depend largely on the seven helicopter carriers to break a stranglehold on oil supplies. As a last resort to prevent the strangulation of the West, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has warned that the United States might use military force.

Vice Admiral Frederick Turner, the Sixth Fleet commander, backed up Kissinger's warning with a statement that the Navy didn't want to invade any oil shiekhdom but was "prepared" to do so.

The stark truth is that the the helicopter carrier fleet is scarcely seaworthy, let alone prepared for combat. Each carrier is supposed to deliver by helicopter an entire battalion of Marines, with howitzers, vehicles and supplies. It's unlikely they would make it.

We reported last November on the deterioration of the helicopter carrier fleet. As the worst example, we quoted from classified reports on the leaky, creaky condition of the USS Okinawa.

WASHINGTON — A piece of paper wending its way through the labyrinth of the White House bureaucracy toward President Ford's desk restates a question which has repeatedly confronted him during six months in office: how much and how often must he appease the Republican right?

Unless short-circuited before it reaches Mr. Ford, the piece of paper will recommend that the President nominate a young technocrat named Eric R. Zausner as the government's top energy policymaker. But conservative Republicans on the Senate Interior Committee, mainly Westerners, are fussing and fighting to keep his name from ever being submitted to the Senate.

Zausner, a 30-year-old computer whiz out of the Wharton Business School, is being boosted as deputy administrator for policy of the Federal Energy Administration (FEA) by both his boss, administrator Frank Zarb, and Rogers Morton, Secretary of the Interior. But the Western Senators have bluntly informed the White House Zausner is too liberal, too rude, too inexperienced (topped off by unfounded innuendo about his patriotism). What is really wrong with Zausner, however, is that he is too independent of oil interests.

Thus, while publicly indicated by liberal Democrats for being big oil's patsy, Mr. Ford is privately convicted by conservative Republicans for offending the party's old friends. Those oil friends have now cranked up a campaign against Zausner which will be a symbolic test of the industry's influence on the Ford administration.

But beyond energy questions, the Zausner problem underlines Mr. Ford's need to solidify the Republican minority support for him in an overwhelmingly Democratic Congress. Surely, then, the head of a middle-level bureaucrat is not too much to ask in return for the support of Republican Senators on difficult votes to come. But how often shall Mr. Ford have to change policy and decisions to satisfy conservative Republican demands?

A Federal Energy official since the summer of 1973, Zausner is described by one associate as "a workhorse, a driver who kicks tails." A rough gem, Zausner has shown insufficient deference to U.S. senators in personal contacts.

Nevertheless, precisely what the senators have against him is not entirely clear — and certainly not always justified. One administration official was recently asked by a Republican Senator: "Do you really want to embarrass Jerry Ford by having him nominate a conscientious objector?"

The "conscientious objector" charge, widely circulated on Capitol Hill, turns out to be a canard. Upon getting his master's degree in 1968, Zausner enlisted in the U.S. Public Health Service, fulfilling his military obligation by two years service there. At no time did he file as a conscientious objector.

More relevant but perhaps just as inaccurate is the charge by one Senate Republican that Zausner is "a regulator who believes in the government stepping in and doing it all." In truth, ardent free marketers inside the administration say Zausner is a team player who follows the Ford line.

What's really wrong with Zausner is found in the senatorial complaint that Zausner is "a computer man" who just doesn't know enough about the oil industry. That means he is not responsive enough to oil. "When an oil lobbyist comes into Eric's office with a problem" one administration official relates, "he runs into hard questions instead of an understanding smile."

to become then Treasury Secretary John B. Connally's oil advisor, is the industry candidate to be deputy administrator. A petition boosting him for that post began circulating on Capitol Hill last week.

Zausner's visits to senatorial offices the past two weeks, promoted by Morton, did no good. Opposition by Interior Committee Republicans was officially relayed to the White House. That means almost certainly President Ford will have to eigh the unpleasant alternatives in the Zausner case that typify the plight of a non-elected President facing a not overly loyal congressional minority of his own party and a fractious majority of the opposition.

By overriding the wishes of Republican senators and nominating an anonymous technocrat lacking political significance or connections, Mr. Ford could jeopardize votes desperately needed for the Senate to sustain his vetoes. The price for that support is implicitly to recognize regional and industrial review rights over his energy policy. The price, therefore, is high. Nor does anybody at the White House doubt that, even if Zausner is sacrificed, that price will have to be paid again and again.

It Was Told in the Cards

The old trains were living, panting things. Some had character; some burned tons of coal and gave little in return. The best train to inch out of Exchange Place, Jersey City, was not The Broadway Limited. It was the Newspaper Train.

Foot-and-a-Half had seniority. He was short and gray and he walked around his engine with a long-spouted oil can, studying the huge drivers, the brake shoes, stuffing boxes, steam boxes. Up in the cab, he ran his hand along the throttle bar to find the smooth spot.

That told him where this engine would do her best with the least consumption of coal. Everyone knew he had lost the front part of his right foot in an accident, but no one dared ask how. Maybe an engine inched forward as he stood between the drivers.

At 1:55 a.m., he was high in the cab, listening for the ferry whistle as the old "Chicago" pulled into a slip, laden with scores of thousands of copies of the Morning World, the New York Globe, the Times, the Herald.

Trucks pulled them up to the track level. In the dead of winter, men sweated as they heaved the bundles into nine baggage cars. This was Foot-and-a-Half's newspaper special: it made no stops between Jersey City and Wilkes Barre, 190 miles.

Foot-and-a-Half picked my father as his fireman. Big John was 20 and strong. The fire door was open most of the way because the speeding, roaring engine kept sucking the center out of the fire. His other duty was to jump into the left side of the cab, read the signal ahead and yell, "Green over green!" The engineer repeated the words.

Foot-and-a-Half asked for nothing less than perfection. As he passed any station, he knew that men in the mail cars had pushed bundles of newspapers near the edge and, 200 feet before reaching the station, would kick them out in the freezing wind.

They would fly in slow motion, tumbling and turning, and bounce and slide and stop in front of the station master's office. That was the trick and they seldom failed.

One night at home a friend of my mother was reading cards. "Oh," she said, "I see a big accident. No. Almost an accident." Big John was dating Jenny and he pooh-poohed the cards and their ominous message.

That night they pulled out of Exchange Place slowly, red sparks arcing in the sky. At Manhattan Transfer, they were going well and got a message off an arm. "Watch out for special," it read. "Taking you from track two to one."

Foot-and-a-Half read it and blinked out into the thundering blackness. He slowed the train before the Newark Bridge and, as his last car cleared track two, an express train sped by going the other way on the same track. Death was just a lash of wind away.

In the morning, they learned that President Theodore Roosevelt had taken a night train out of Washington for New York. My father was frightened. He asked to go back to perishable fruits. The divisional superintendent agreed.

Fo years he said in awe: "We came this close to killing a President." The cards. The damned cards. One night the card reader said, "You will lose someone you respect before the sun is up."

After midnight, he left his waiting train and spoke to Foot-and-a-Half. "Ah, Johnny," the old engineer said. "You should be with me. We're the class of the road." Big John felt ashamed. He got on his locomotive and fired it up as the engineer spun the drivers and sent the fire flying out of the chimney.

At Rahway, N.J., they yanked a message off the arm. "South of New Brunswick, routing you off track two across track three and four to siding. Wait for further orders. Trenton."

At New Brunswick, the track runs downhill to Princeton Junction. The "perishables" was speeding and rocking as it began its long, long snake across the tracks.

Behind them, at the top of the hill, came Foot-and-a-Half. He had an orange block signal followed by a red over red. He didn't stop. He didn't slow down.

The newspaper special sliced through the freight cars as though it was cutting salami. A thousand feet farther down, the speeding engine tilted and fell. Foot-and-a-Half was found at his post, with his hand on the throttle.

"It couldn't happen to him," my father said in his age. "He was the best. Damn those cards."...

Bury the Hatchet on George Washington's Birthday

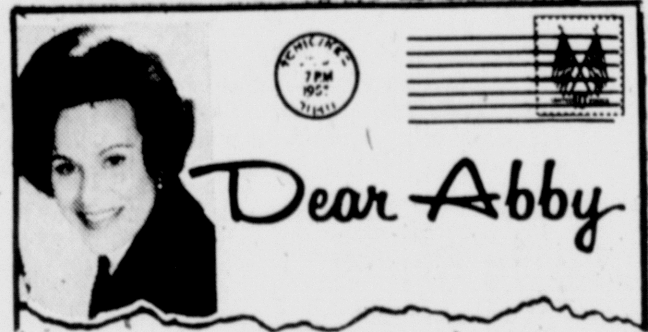

By Abigail Van Buren
1975 by Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am probably only one mother among many with this problem, but if anyone can help us, Abby, it just might be you.

I have six grown children who have brought me much happiness, but here is the problem. The eldest daughter and youngest son had a falling out with each other four years ago, and they haven't spoken to each other since.

I can never have a complete family gathering because if my son and his wife are invited, my daughter and her family will not come, and vice versa.

I am sure they don't realize what a heartbreak this is to me. Please print this, Abby, and if it doesn't hit home with them, maybe it will help some more fortunate mother.

PENNSYLVANIA MOM
DEAR MOM: I have always felt that forgiveness is one of man's noblest virtues, and because I feel so strongly about it, I have only two quotations on my desk — both dealing with that subject: "He who cannot forgive, destroys the bridge over which he may one day need to pass."

And, "Forgiveness is the fragrance of the violet on the heel of the one who crushed it."

I hope your daughter and son start speaking to each other soon, because without communication, there can be no truce. It matters not who SHOULD make the first move, but the one who does will show himself to be the more mature.

I pray your children see this, for their own sakes as well as for yours, Mom. Wouldn't it be great if they decided that February 22nd will be the ideal day to "bury the hatchet?"

DEAR ABBY: Why do telephone callers always get preference over customers who shop in person? It's so unfair!

I'm sure many of your readers have had that irritating experience. First they park their cars in a parking lot, or near a ticking meter. Then they fight to get waited on. And when they finally are, the telephone rings and the salesperson says, "Excuse me, please..." and proceeds to take a 15-minute order from the party on the phone. Meanwhile you are standing on one foot and then the other, burning with resentment.

Can't clerks use a little common sense and ask the person on the phone to kindly wait until she finishes with her customer?

I hope you find room for this in your column, Abby. If it's happened to you, you'll know how frustrating it is. Thanks.

STANDIN' AND WAITIN'
DEAR STANDIN': I found room for it, even though I'm usually the customer on the phone.

Area Host Families Needed

More Kingston area families are needed to entertain English-speaking European teachers as guests in their homes for a 10-day period next summer, it was announced today by the American Host Program.

American Host is one of the few non-governmental programs designed to show the American way of life to foreign teachers by pairing them with American families.

Now in its thirteenth year, American Host has opened doors to better understanding for more than 5,500 European teachers who have passed on their new understanding of America to their students, colleagues and friends.

Being a "Host Family" is open to anyone who has the desire to increase understanding and friendship between Americans and Europeans. Host Families are required to provide a private room, meals for their guest, the opportunity to meet their friends, neighbors and perhaps fellow teachers and to see places of interest in the area.

American Host arranges all transportation. Host Families are asked to meet their guest upon arrival in their area. Teachers and Host Families have an opportunity to correspond for at least a month before meeting.

Arrangements for participating as a Host Family can be made by writing to: The American Host Program, Hotel Commodore, Suite 2100, Park Avenue at 42nd Street, New York. Deadline for information is March 15.

take place after the brief meeting. Consulting Rosarians will be available to give suggestions and tips to rose growers concerning the newer roses now offered in spring catalogues, as well as successful methods of rose culture currently in practice.

There is still time to take advantage of the free rose-bush offer made by the American Rose Society to new applicants for membership in the national organization.

Membership privileges include an Annual, a book of fascinating articles on every phase of growing roses, a monthly magazine, free library loan of a large number of publications, and entree to many private rose gardens.

Relief Society's Tuesday Topic: Love, Compassion in the Family

The importance of love and compassion in family relationships will be the subject of discussion at the Relief Society's weekly meeting Tuesday, Feb. 18 at 10 a.m. at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Lake Katrine. Mrs. Irma Sagazie of Saugerties will conduct the meeting in the absence of Mrs. Rita Webster who recently underwent surgery.

The study will stress the conditions that should exist in a home to make it a worthy learning place for teaching compassion.

The late David O. McKay, president of the Church, stated that one of the most precious possessions in his memory was that of a home in which love was supreme. He urged each person to examine actions toward husband, wife and children, brothers and sisters, and stressed the repentance of all unkindnesses.

The meeting is open to all women who would like to participate.

Dear Heloise:

I would like to pass along a hint to make body shirts last longer.

The snaps on my body shirt wore out, so for a quick repair, I took an old worn-out bra and cut off the elastic with the hooks and eyes on it. I sewed the hook to the front panel and the eyes to the back.

The elastic still had a lot of use and it saved me a body shirt.

TODAY'S TREASURES

Retired Couples Interests Are a Tip to the Young

By Jean Barnes

Women's Lib and instant mixes have tended to belittle the importance of the kitchen in family life, according to Hattie Stewart. She believes the kitchen should be just as attractive and inviting as any other room in the house.

Her kitchen is a "gallery in miniature" where she displays her collection of hand-painted porcelain, apothecary jars, iron trivets and other things of a bygone era.

Hattie and her husband, Dan, are in their 70's. Both like old things, although Hattie's interest is in glass and china, while Dan is more apt to collect furniture and metal objects. Together, their interests have been blended in the kitchen.

The Dan Stewarts, in their 70's have been collecting and restoring old furniture, china, porcelain and metal objects since the fire that destroyed their home in the 1930's. Their kitchen now is a miniature gallery.

Dan was a construction superintendent with a flair for cabinetmaking. Since retirement he has spent many hours restoring and refinishing the furniture in their home. His hands are responsible for an oak commode which accommodates several electrical appliances and the beautiful oak kitchen table and chairs.

Hattie began collecting back in the '30s when a farm fire destroyed most of the family possessions and they had to start "from scratch" to accumulate all that was needed to make a home for their four children.

But what they have acquired is more than an accumulation to them—more than a collection. Each item represents memories of a friend or relative. "The map and coffee grinder came from Judge Young," Hattie is apt to say. Or, "My daughter-in-law started my collection of miniature trivets."

Ask her why she displays her collections in her kitchen and you will discover the answer is people-oriented. "I wanted it to be a warm, wonderful place to eat and entertain."

"Dad says I spend three-fourths of my time in the kitchen. I don't know about that but when anyone comes, they usually find me there or we go to the kitchen and have coffee around the kitchen table."

Seldom has been seen a collection more lovingly acquired or appreciated. If you haven't guessed—this is a tribute to our parents who are largely responsible for our interest in people and the things they collect.

EDITOR'S NOTE: To readers who have written asking about refinishing trunks. There will be a column in the near future on this subject. It has been a delight to hear from you to know of your interests. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Sawyer Homemakers Program On Velvet Painting Technique

Artist Stella Atkinson demonstrated the technique of velvet painting at a recent meeting of the Sawyer Homemakers. Using oils, she created a rural scene on a stretched piece of dark blue velvet and floral grouping on black velvet. Several of her completed works were also on exhibit.

Currently serving as vice president of the Ulster County Art Association, Mrs.

Atkinson enjoys teaching art classes in her Kingston home. She also likes to sew and lists traveling as one of her favorite hobbies.

Chairman Mrs. Dennis McCann presided at a brief business meeting during which two classes were scheduled for the membership. They are: Construction of paper roses with Mrs. John Welton as instructor; and basic quilting taught by Mrs. Henry Montano.

Guests for the evening were Althea Allstetter, Bella Tomson, Alice Paul and Stella Atkinson.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Holcombe Tomson with Mrs. McCann and Mrs. Robert Wagner serving refreshments.

The next meeting is scheduled for February 20 and will be held at the home of Mrs. William Widholm.

UCCC Planning an Active Bicentennial Program

The Bicentennial Committee at Ulster County Community College is planning an active program including speakers, film and music programs, courses, and art and cultural exhibitions, according to Dr. Donald Katt, the chairman.

He said the committee hopes to present a film series later this spring on the history of America preceding the Revolution and will have a full schedule of activities for the 1975-76 academic year beginning next September.

The entire art exhibition series at Ulster for the 1975-76 academic year will pertain to the Revolutionary period and other special exhibits dealing with this era will be displayed in the Macdonald DeWitt Library. There also will be special musical programs relating to the Bicentennial.

Dr. Katt said discussions are underway on the possibility of offering an interdisciplinary credit course related to the Bicentennial. "It is hoped that students in this course will be involved in various projects and activities which will be available for the public," he added.

The College also hopes to sponsor various speakers on the significance of the Revolutionary period and plans to continue work on its Ulster County Local history collection in the Macdonald DeWitt Library.

"Another possibility," said Dr. Katt, "is a survey of various historical sites in the county."

Benefit Concert By Don McLean

Folksinger Don McLean will once again donate his talents to the Hudson River Sloop Restoration when he sings at a benefit concert at Poughkeepsie High School next Saturday, Feb. 22. The concert begins at 8:30 p.m.

McLean, who first performed in this area as a crewmember of the sloop Clearwater and as the "Hudson River Troubadour," achieved national fame several years ago when his "American Pie" became the most popular song in the country. His ballad "Vincent," a tribute to painter Vincent Van Gogh, clearly established Don as one of the outstanding songwriters of contemporary American folk music; earned him a Grammy Award nomination.

With his home in the Hudson Valley community of Garrison, McLean has always been interested in the environmental problems facing the Hudson River and the efforts of groups such as the Sloop Restoration to restore the river to its natural state. His song, "Tapestry," and others like it related to the environment and the Hudson River, are performed by Don and other artists on the album, CLEARWATER, released this year by the Hudson River Sloop Restoration and the Beacon Sloop Club.

Don McLean has also just released an album of his own entitled HOMELESS BROTHER containing his newest songs, many of which will be performed at the Poughkeepsie concert. Following the Feb. 22 concert, McLean will leave for an extensive concert tour of Australia and New Zealand.

Proceeds from this year's concert will be used for restoration of the Fite House, an historic 19th century dwelling recently purchased by the Sloop Restoration. Upon completion of the restoration and renovation work, the house will become permanent headquarters for HRSR, a community environmental workcenter and a museum of Hudson Valley history and culture. Work parties have been held and much work already accomplished but funds are sorely needed to progress with repairwork.

INTERNATIONAL OPEN HOUSE—American Association of University Women, Kingston Branch, held an international buffet and cocktail party Saturday, Feb. 8 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lastig of Riverview Terrace, Kingston. International gourmet foods and recipes were featured at the annual gala. Proceeds from this fund-raiser will go to the fellowship fund. Mrs. Laurence J. Bruck, center, fellowship chairman, served as chairman of the event. Committee members included Mrs. Walter Lastig, left, and Mrs. Daniel VanWagenen. (Freeman Photo)

Four Seasons to Perform Friday for Newburgh Campus

Million-selling recording artists Frankie Valli and The Four Seasons will perform at Mount Saint Mary College in Newburgh on Friday, Feb. 21 at 9 p.m. in Aquinas Hall Theater. The rock group has earned 17 gold records (sales over one million) in the past ten years.

Lead singer Frankie Valli organized The Four Seasons in the early 1960's. Under his direction, the group has sold over 53 million records, beginning with "Sherry" in 1962 through their current hit, "My Eyes Adore You."

The Four Seasons recently drew 22,000 fans to Madison Square Garden for a rock revival concert. Rock critic Jim Nettleton has called them "the one American rock group that consistently rode out the British rock invasion with their unique sound, a sound that heavily influenced the vocal styles of many rock artists."

In addition to Valli, group members are Lee Shapiro, keyboards and vocals; Don Ciccone, vocals and guitar; Gerry Polci, vocals and percussion; and Joe Long, vocals and bass guitar.

WHITA Group Addresses Finance, Ways and Means Committee

ALBANY — "Too much legislative action translates into mandated spending in subsequent years," Mrs. Alice Tipp told state legislators Wednesday in Albany.

Mrs. Tipp, president of the We've Had It Taxpayers Association (WHITA) of Ulster County, appeared at a public hearing jointly conducted by the State Senate Finance Committee and the Assembly Ways and Means Committee. It marked the third year in a row in which Mrs. Tipp appeared before the two committees.

Mrs. Tipp was accompanied to Albany by WHITA directors Delea T. Shaw and Mildred Hague, and by New Paltz attorney Peter Harp, who also spoke on behalf of WHITA at the hearing.

"The governor and legislators always call the public's attention to how state aid is being increased and all the new programs that were passed and occasionally vetoed by the 'bad guy,'" Mrs. Tipp told legislators. "The reverse being recommended by the governor with the failure of the legislature to act."

"Unless this legislature acts responsibly this year," she said, "along with the governor, there will be no hope for recovery in New York even as the nation's economy begins to rebound."

Mrs. Tipp called for legislation to allow school districts to consider year-round learning if they wished to do so. "A desire for efficiency at the local level must not continue to be impeded by our legislators in Albany," she said. "There must not be any tampering or attempts to modify the protection provided by the state constitution over the taxing powers now tied to percentage of assessed valuation. Counties, cities, city school districts and villages must awake and face reality."

Mrs. Tipp called for support of Governor Carey's proposal to eliminate or consolidate 20 state boards, commissions and councils, but called for retention of the Office of Education Performance Review as well as the Office of Welfare Inspector General.

"The Governor's request for $806 million in new taxes is insane to place on workers already under siege," she said. "Particularly distasteful is the request for a 10 cent hike in the gas tax. Even with a promise to return the tax through increased local assistance it becomes no more palatable." Harp in his speech delivered a strong indictment of the Department of Education, particularly the State University of New York. "We can curb the SUNY department by cutting off money," he said. "This and other methods will be used to purge the schools and colleges. Apparently the pinks, punks, criminals and fuzz at the college must learn the hard way — by experience." Harp called for action "where it really counts — in cutting the appropriations in spite of the biggest lobby in the state by people who should be working for the interest of the people but are using every known method to obtain more and larger appropriations to operate the Frankenstein whose selfish greed has little concern for the common weal. Cutting and limiting the appropriations for education will limit the insatiable greed. We shall press on fervently for economy and better results. You cannot run that machine without money."

Snead Had Temperament For San Diego Scramble

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — You can pull out all the old clichés of golf — and life for that matter — and every one fits J.C. Snead.

Sam Snead's now famous nephew is patient, plays well under pressure, is intent on being his own man, considerate to a fault, and best of all he knows how to play the game under the worst of conditions.

J.C. rolled all those virtues into one hectic hour and a half Sunday and he made them pay off in a dramatic playoff victory in the $170,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

Snead didn't give himself much of a chance when the final round began Sunday, but as the afternoon rolled on so did his game. If you don't believe it, ask Ray Floyd and Bobby Nichols.

Those are the two veteran players Snead tied in regulation play at nine under par 279 and then he beat them in four holes of sudden death while fans screamed and a chilly wind whistled across Torrey Pines' seaside South Course.

Nichols, the defending champion and a pretty popular man with a record crowd of 27,000 who turned out for the windup of the sixth event on this year's PGA Tour, was the first to fall, taking a bogey fifth on the par four, 389-yard 15th — the first of the playoffs.

Floyd thought he had the title won and he rolled a 12-foot putt toward the hole on that same 15th, but the ball zipped across the face of the hole and just passed it. Snead watched closely and then tapped in a four-footer to keep the playoff alive.

"I should have had it right there," said Floyd, who shot a 72 in the final round compared to Snead's 68 and Nichols' 71. "I don't think I could make a better putt than that."

On the following hole — the par three 16th — Snead had another four-footer to look at and it didn't go in.

"I figured we were even after that," said Snead.

The 17th proved routine as both made par fours and then on the 18th Snead got his big chance when Floyd put his second shot into a small lake fronting the green.

A few minutes later, it was all over as Snead rolled home still another four footer for his fourth tournament victory in seven years.

It was by no means an ordinary victory for Snead. He's been so close at least a dozen times in the last two years that he was beginning to doubt he would ever win again.

"When you get into that kind of a rut," said the 33-year-old Snead, "it's hard to get out of it. I figured, though, if I kept on playing my best one day it would all be over."

Sunday was the day, although it cost Snead about 45 minutes of anguished waiting to see if he possibly would be in a playoff. He had finished five groups ahead of Floyd and Nichols and sat patiently in the scorer's tent until he finally heard he indeed was in a playoff.

"I thought about a lot of things," he said later. "I wondered where I stood in Ryder Cup points (he has 184 now and is third on the list behind Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino) and I wondered what was going on at home."

When victory was wrapped up, Snead headed for the press room and immediately called his wife.

"I know it was a long wait," he told her, "but it was worth it, wasn't it, honey?"

Snead won $34,000 here and now has 1975 earnings of $45,253. Last year he won $164,486 for fifth place — the best by a non-tournament winner.

Floyd and Nichols won $15,725 each, while Rod Funseth, who started the final round as the leader by a stroke, wound up fourth after shooting a 74 and won $7,990.

Tom Kite was all alone in fifth and won $6,970 while U.S. Open champ Hale Irwin, Billy Casper and John Mahaffey tied for sixth and won $5,525 each.

Mahaffey, who must be wondering what it takes to win these days, had a chance to grab the title in regulation play. He was the leader by a stroke with only two holes left to play, but John, who likes to charge, didn't play it safe and wound up with double bogies on both holes and out of the chase.

"That's the way I play," he said. "I didn't think I could win playing it safe."

Johnny Miller, plagued by a cold all week, never was a factor and finished in a tie for 16th, seven shots off the lead. He said the way he felt it was an accomplishment just to finish.

The tour goes to Los Angeles this week for the Glenn Campbell-Los Angeles Open. Snead and Miller will be there. So will Nicklaus and Trevino. ★ ★ ★

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Ray Floyd wasn't the only golfer done in by the new lake fronting the 18th green at Torrey Pines during the Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

Floyd put his second shot of the fourth playoff hole with J.C. Snead into the lake and it eventually cost him the championship.

Bruce Devlin provided a comic relief minutes before the windup when he also put his second shot in the lake.

Devlin declined to take a drop and instead tried to hit his ball, which was at the edge of the lake, and it took him six shots to get out.

He eventually took a 10 on the par five hole and finished in a tie for 30th at 289. Had he made the hole in regulation, he could have finished at 284 and won $4,080.

Even a six on the hole would have won him $2,550. As it was, Devlin won $1,032.

"I can't believe it," said Miss Larrieu, who only 24 hours earlier set a world "best" 1,500-meter mark of 4:10.4 in Toronto. "I just keep amazing myself. I was shooting for a record both Friday night and tonight, but this is really better than I expected."

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — If Richard Petty couldn't beat his old rival David Pearson, he wanted to give some help to a former Detroit cab driver who had a chance.

"C'mon, boy, let's go," he signaled to Benny Parsons, trying to catch Pearson in the waning laps of Sunday's Daytona 500 stock car race.

Parsons, an infrequent winner riding a Chevrolet, fell in behind Petty, who was far off the pace due to some unscheduled pit stops, and was pulled along in the draft of Petty's speedier Dodge.

"I saw Richard coming and said to myself, 'Maybe this is the answer to my prayers,'" said Parsons, a two-time winner on the Grand National circuit from Ellerbe, N.C. "I think Richard could have backed out and let me try to beat David by myself. Then I would have faced one of the toughest competitors of my life."

But then Parsons' prayers were answered in an unexpected way. Virtually assured of his first Daytona 500 victory, Pearson lost control of his Mercury on a turn into the

$3,400 Water Hole

Bruce Devlin nearly stole the show Sunday as he waded into the lake at bottom of 18th green and took 10 shots on par 5 hole, as he made repeated efforts to play ball out of water at edge of lake. At right, Devlin mops off water that splashed in his face. The incident cost him $3,400 in winnings as he finished the final round of the Andy Williams San Diego Open with a one-over-par 289.

Chicago Bulls Gave It to Motta

By United Press International

Chicago Bulls' Coach Dick Motta "wanted it bad," and Norm Van Lier, Bob Love and the Bulls' tough defense gave it to him.

They combined to produce a 114-109 triumph over the Buffalo Braves in the National Basketball Association's televised Sunday afternoon game. It gave the Bulls four straight victories and nine in the last 10 games.

"It was a tough game for me," Motta said, "because Jerry Sloan wasn't here, and it was a TV game and we've got a good product and should make it good on television."

That they did, playing with the "intensity" Motta has come to expect of his team in recent weeks when the Bulls have put everything together to open up a bit of daylight over their rivals in the NBA's Midwest Division.

The Bulls needed the point production from Love and Van Lier to balance the 40 points fired for Buffalo by the league-leading scorer Bob McAdoo. But Braves' Coach Jack Ramsey credited Van Lier as "the difference in the game. He penetrated well, and scored well above his average. It was obvious he picked up the slack for Sloan."

The Bulls' strategy was designed to get Van Lier some shots because Motta said, "We set the screen to run Norm past McAdoo's position and put a lot of responsibility on the defensive man."

Van Lier hit 10 of 19 field goal attempts and nine of 10 free throw tries.

Elsewhere, the New Orleans Jazz continued to surprise the league with a 103-101 victory over Milwaukee, the fourth win in the last five games for the team with the worst record in the pros. In other games, Washington ripped New York 125-104, Seattle routed Los Angeles 109-87, Cleveland clipped Houston 100-95 and Kansas City-Omaha beat Detroit 102-99.

Bullets 125, Knicks 104

Washington scored 18 straight points to beat New York for the second time in less than 24 hours. Elvin Hayes, with a game-high 33 points, led the Washington surge as the Bullets collected their 16th straight victory at home and improved their season record to 41-16.

Sonics 109, Lakers 87

Spencer Haywood, normally a forward, shifted into the center position after rookie Tommy Burleson got into early foul trouble and led Seattle past Los Angeles with 24 points. Back spasms forced Seattle's other regular center, Jim Fox, to sit out the game.

Cavs 100, Rockets 95

Dick Snyder, who missed his only two field goal attempts in the first half, flipped in nine of 10 shots in the second half to spark Cleveland. Jim Chones chipped with 18 points for Cleveland while Calvin Murphy of the Rockets topped all scorers with 33 points.

Kings 102, Pistons 99

Nate Archibald scored 35 points, including the last seven, to lead the red-hot Kings. The Kings, bidding to make the playoffs for the first time since 1967, when the franchise was in Cincinnati, won their 10th game in the last 11 outings and their fourth straight. Bob Lanier led Detroit with 27 points.

In the ABA, Bobby Jones, the rookie from North Carolina played a superb defensive game in Denver's 117-115 overtime win over the New York Nets. In the final 13 seconds of the overtime period, Jones blocked two shots and had an assist to Mack Calvin's layup with eight seconds to play that won the game.

Jones also denied the Nets' Julius Erving the ball during the overtime, as Erving shot only twice in that five-minute session. His first two fields opened the scoring in overtime for Denver. Jones finished with 23 points, hitting 10 of 14 from the floor and also had nine rebounds.

Elsewhere, St. Louis edged San Antonio and San Diego defeated Kentucky in overtime, 133-128.

Marvin Barnes scored 26 points and Maurice Lucas 23 for the Spirits who upped their record to 23-38.

Bo Lamar scored 40 points, including 13 during the overtime session to lead the Q's to victory over the Colonels. It was the second straight overtime triumph for the Q's who defeated the New York Nets 176-166 in a marathon four-overtime contest Friday night. Artis Gilmore led Kentucky with 26 points.

RANGER GOALIE TAKES A SWIPE
Flyers Catch Bruins

(UPI)

The Philadelphia Flyers, tired from a 1-1 tie in Long Island the night before, Sunday scored their first victory in four games against Boston when they downed the Bruins, 4-3.

The nationally-televised game had all the excitement of the meeting between the two teams last year when Philadelphia beat the Bruins for the Stanley Cup.

Reggie Leach scored his 28th goal of the season to put the Flyers ahead to stay at 4-3 at 15:26 of the second period. The win gave Flyers' goalie Benie Parent his 32nd victory against 11 losses and seven ties. Dave Schultz suffered a slight concussion after a run-in with Terry O'Reilly during the first six minutes of the game.

In other games, the Buffalo Sabres clinched a play-off berth by playing a 4-4 tie with the St. Louis Blues. Pittsburgh Penguins defeated the New York Islanders, 3-2.

The New York Rangers tied the Toronto Maple Leafs 5-4; Minnesota North Stars beat the California Golden Seals 8-4; Washington Capitals topped Kansas City Scouts 3-0 and the Montreal Canadiens downed the Chicago Black Hawks 6-3.

In the WHA Winnipeg Jets downed the Chicago Cougars 6-3; Phoenix topped Edmonton 5-4; Toronto edged Vancouver 7-4 and Minnesota beat San Diego, 5-2.

Petty Gave Parsons Helping Hand

A Massive Pileup . . .

Sequence (top L to Lower R) shows the progression leading to massive 4th lap accident at Daytona 500 Sunday. Jim Vandiver (99) loses control, perhaps after brushing James Hylton (48). Swerving around Vandiver forces Dick Trickle (75) into the wall. Van is then hit by Joe Mihalic (60) and finally Randy Tissot (74) tried to get past the skidding cars. Nobody was hurt. (UPI) backstretch and spun out of the lead with just two laps to go.

When he saw Pearson's pligh, Parsons said, "I about cried, I ain't kidding you."

Parsons, who once was in the taxi business in Detroit, had won only two minor NASCAR races before he collected the $41,405 first place prize in Daytona Sunday.

He finished a lap ahead of Bobby Allison's Chevrolet, with Cale Yarborough in a Chevrolet another lap back. Pearson, often in last-lap duels with Petty, had to settle for fourth place.

Parsons averaged 153.649 m.p.h. in the chase which saw seven drivers swap the lead 21 times on the 2.5-mile tri-oval at Daytona International Speedway.

A record crowd of more than 105,000 came to its feet when Pearson, who had dominated the last 100 miles of the race, started spinning out of control.

Pearson was furious. He wouldn't talk to reporters.

"Don't ask me, I'm not going to say anything about it," he said. "I got spun out but I'd just as soon not talk about it. People who were watching know who did it. They know who was over there with me."

One of them was Yarborough.

"I was behind (Richie) Panch and Pearson, I guess, who was going to slingshot," he said. "I don't know whether he cut back in too soon or what but he clipped me and spun out. I hate it happened to him."

Petty, seeking his sixth Daytona 500 victory and third in a row, dropped back early with overheating problems in his Dodge and finished seventh. Donnie Allison, who started on the pole, fell out after less than 100 miles with fuel pump problems on his Chevrolet.

Buddy Baker dominated the chase much of the afternoon in his Ford before rolling behind the wall with a spent engine after 144 laps.

Parsons, 33, father of two boys, said he saw Petty's car

"coming fast" and decided to hitch a ride in the draft.

He signaled to the five-time Daytona winner and Petty motioned for him to "latch on."

And it was Petty's crew helping lead the cheers on pit row when Parsons pulled off the unexpected.

"Maybe the shock hasn't worn off yet," he said. "I don't think words can describe it. You just have to get you a race car and go do it I guess."

Leads ABC With 680

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — William Welty Jr. of Hanover, Pa., started off the first day of the 79-day American Bowling Congress here Sunday with 18 strikes and a 680 series to take a 10-pin lead over Dennis Van Wormer of Flint, Mich., in the singles competition.

Welty, who has rolled a perfect 300-game in his career, smacked the pins for 18 strikes in the series and did not have a single open frame. Van Wormer also held sixth place in the all-events competition with a 1797 total.

Thomas Marshall of Dayton, a right-hander who has a 791 series and a 300 score to his bowling credit, turned in 636, 630 and 623 series for an 1889, good for first place in the allevents. He leads Thomas Scott of Sharon, Pa., by 56 sticks.

Two St. Louis bowlers, Paul Brandon and Woody Dalton, jumped into the lead in defense of their doubles championship last year in Indianapolis. The Missouri pair rolled a 1228 total for a 13-point margin over Greg Steinke and Curtis Benham of East Lansing, Mich.

Steel Valley Lanes of Weirton, W. Va., took the lead in the team event at Saturday night's first bowling. The West Virginians tallied a 2920, for a 22 pin edge over Thornton Hall No. 1 of Sharon, Pa.

Rondout Edges Onteora For UCAL Mat Title

LOCH SHELDRAKE
The Ulster County Athletic League's first championship wrestling tournament could not have been much closer than the three way team battle that went on in the Sullivan Community College field house Saturday night.

Rondout Valley High, represented in five weights in the final round, pulled off the coup of the year by finishing with 65 points to edge Onteora by two and favored New Paltz by four points.

Liberty, Wallkill, Ellenville, Pine Bush, Red Hook and Fallsburg completed the field and trailed the leaders in that order.

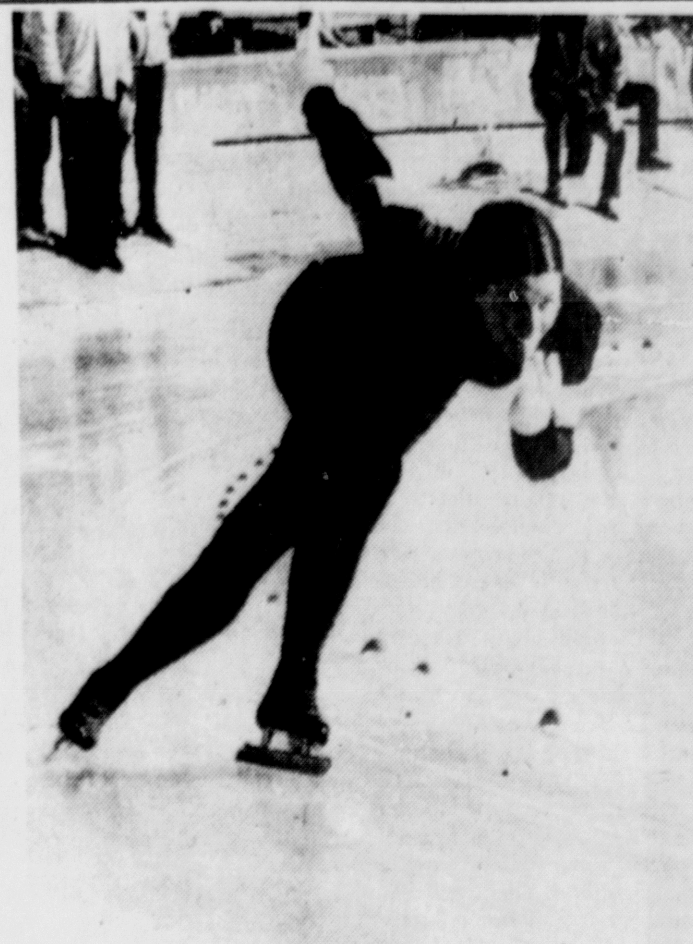

Tom Barry in 101, and Bob Krom in 148, the Gander co-captains, each took an individual title to lead RVC. Steve Coddington and Ted and John Nadratowski were Rondout's other finalists and Terry Darcy aided the winners with a consolation triumph.

Onteora boasted three champions, Dave Jensen in 122, Tony DeBellis in 129 and Ted Beahm in 170. Joe Murray and Gary Van Leuvan took thirds for the Indians.

New Paltz's Bob McGuire captured the 122 crown, but teammate Bob Kopaick was upset by Ellenville's Tony Del Gaizo in the 218 match. The Ellices also had a winner in Harris Marcus in 141.

Italy's Alvera Ends Bobsled Domination

CERVINIA, Italy (UPI) — Wolfgang Zimmerer handed the big silver cup over to Italy's Giorgio Alvera. He smiled and said good-naturedly, "I just didn't drive as well as usual."

It was the end of Zimmerer's three-year reign as world champion two-man bobsled driver. The blond baker from Ohlstadt, West Germany, finished fourth in the 1975 championships that wound up Sunday at this mountain resort under the Matterhorn. He will defend his four-man title next weekend.

Zimmerer, 34, said a leg injury his brakeman, Peter Utschneider, had suffered recently with a saw had "a certain impact. But there was no excuse. I just didn't drive as well as usual."

Alvera and brakeman Franco Perruquet captured all four heats Saturday and Sunday and came within fourth one-hundredths of a second of equaling the record time of 1:10.95 minutes down the 1,540-meter track. Their four-run total of 4:45.38 gave them a wide winning margin of 2.12 seconds.

"I had good luck," Alvera said. "I had thought that if all went well I would win the third place." Alvera, 32, and brakeman Franco Perruquet, 26, won their second Italian championship two weeks earlier.

The brown-bearded Alvera is owner of a hotel in Cortina d'Ampezzo in the Dolomites, site of Italy's only other bobsled run and home of eight-time world champion Eugenio Monti. Perruquet is a civil servant in the alpine town of Fenis.

On three of the four runs the Italy 1 team started with the fastest pushoff. "It was important," Alvera said, "but everything is important, not just that."

George Heibl and Fritz Ohlwarter were second in West Germany 2 with Fritz Ludi and Karl Haseli third in Switzerland 1. In their country's debut in world championship bobsled racing, Horst Schonau and Horst Bernhardt won fifth place in East Germany 1, followed by Meinhard Nehmer and Bernard Gernshausen in sixth place in East Germany 2.

The United States 1 team of Jim Morgan, 27, of Saranac Lake, New York and Tim Becker, 26, of Indianapolis took seventh place. Howard Siler, 29, of Hampton, Virginia, and John Proctor, 24, of Plattsburgh, New York, were 15th in United States 2.

$5 Million Chess Offer

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — The International Chess Federation said today it has accepted Manila's $5 million offer to stage a world championship match between Bobby Fischer and Russian challenger Boris Karpov starting June 1. The Russians immediately objected.

Manila was Fischer's choice. Karpov wanted to play in Milan, which offered $440,000 in prize money, saying Manila was too hot. Because of the disagreement, the chess federation, known by its French initials as FIDE, had to decide.

Nikolai Ryndin, cultural attache of the Soviet embassy in Holland, told newsmen his federation rejected the FIDE decision "for technical reasons."

Headin' For A First

Sheila Young of Detroit flashed around the turn Sunday to become the first American to win the World Sprint Skating championship twice. She won both the 500 meter and 1,000 meter sprints at Goteborg, Sweden to become the undisputed champ. She won two titles two years ago in Oslo. (UPI)

Sheila Young Sprint Skating Repeat Champ

GOTEBORG, Sweden (UPI) — Sheila Young of Detroit, winner of the women's world sprint skating championships, said today her next goal is to get one or two titles in next year's Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria.

"There is only one thing that worries me," said the pretty dark-haired 23-year-old. "There is only one track for speed skating back home and there are now plans to make it into a parking lot."

She said she hoped the authorities changed their minds about turning the rink into a parking lot "after my win here in Goteborg. If I need be, though, I'll move to Europe to practice for the Olympics."

"I have not made up my mind yet, but it is likely that I will quit skating after the Olympics, so therefore I want to win badly at Innsbruck," she said.

In the men's division, Alexander Saronov of the Soviet Union won the gold medal. Miss Young won three out of the four races on the way to the world title—her second in the sprint championships. She also won in Oslo in 1973.

Title defender, Leah Paulus, of Northbrook, Ill., fell during the 500 meter race on Saturday and retired from the competition.

Miss Young won the title with a points total, accumulated on two 500-meter and two 1,000-meter races, of 178.045 points.

Heiki Lange of East Germany won the silver medal while Cathy Priestner of Canada won the first medal for her country, placing third.

Saronov, a 22-year-old student from Moscow, captured the men's crown with 162.815 points.

Safronov, the world 1,000-meter record holder, won his specialty Sunday while his fellow countryman, Eugene Kulikov, won the 500 meters.

The Russians swept the men's competition by capturing all three medals.

The Greenbacks Capture First In Volleyball

SAUGERTIES Having finished a close second the past two seasons, Greenbacks finally cashing in on a SAA Girls Volleyball championship, edging Turk Construction, 3-2, in the playoff for the 1975 title.

Turks won the first game 15-4 with a crucial six point surge with Peggy Wright on the service line. Beth Priest served the final four points, as Greenbacks broke a 11-11 deadlock for a 1-1 tie. Carol Tonsing's six-point service put Turk's ahead 2-1, but Greenies rallied again, with a six-point streak by Michelle Szyal setting up a 15-4 win to tie the match 2-2.

At this point after 11 sessions, the two contenders held identical 37-7 records. Turk's quickly jumped to a 5-0 on their initial service, but the Greenbacks rebounded once more. They reeled off the next 13 points with eight straight coming on Margie Allen's service.

Turk's got back on the scoreboard, closing the gap to 13-8 before the Greenbacks notched their 14th point. And this is where the pressure set in. Five times the Greenies had 'game-serve' and five times Turk's stopped them. In the meantime, Turk's kept picking away reducing their deficit to a single point, but on their sixth try the Greenbacks scored to win the game 15-13 and reign as the 1975 A Division champion.

Greenbacks' victory thwarted Turk's bid to become the first team in the league's history to capture three straight titles.

The roster of the Greenbacks included Linda Scott, Holly Heppner, Cathy Begay, Casey Musto, Ann Brigandi, Beth Priest, Margie Allen, Michelle Szyal, Pam Fitzpatrick and Coach Pat Thomson.

Turk's personnel listed Peggy Wright, Vicki Pelham, Cindy Turk, Irene Frankenberg, Teddie Cline, Carol McAuliffe, Kris Swingle, Paula Mannhaupt, Carol Tonsing and Pam Vitarius.

Coach Short Pleased With Third In DCSL

KINGSTON Kingston High's Dean Short was a satisfied coach after Saturday's DCSL wrestling tournament at Saugerties.

"I'm really proud of the kids... everyone contributed," Short said. "We needed all the points to beat out FDR."

Kingston finished with 71½ team points, two more than Roosevelt. It was well behind first place Arlington (135½) and runnerup Saugerties (103), but it was a vast improvement over a year ago.

"We're really happy with third over our eighth place last year, and we got there with mainly sophomores and juniors," Short explained.

Only two wrestlers won't be back for next year, co-captains Rich Sippel and Paul Martino. Their absence will be felt—Martino has been a steady performer for KHS in 177, and Sippel, after a spectacular season in 167, was voted the Outstanding Wrestler of the tournament Saturday. But the KHS future is promising.

Evidence of that showed up when the Quick Pin award was presented, Kingston's Curt Bradley, who spent half the year in junior varsity competition, was the recipient. Bradley, even though he lost to Arlington's top-seeded Ken Medla in the finals, scored three first period falls during the night to post the best record. One of those pins came at the expense of second-seeded Scott Buchanan of Haldane.

Bradley's closest competition for the prize came from teammate Phil Brown, another KHS underclassman. His victories included a win over second-seeded Gordie Winters of John Jay.

The Sawyers also had an exceptional tournament, coming closer to the Admirals than expected. Top-ranked Jim Hallion lived up to his notices by winning the 155 title, and Saugerties' Andy Limeri and Tom Carr also won their classes in underdog performances.

Limeri was rated third in the 92 pound category, and Carr was seeded a second to Arlington's Jeff Wright in 98.

Wildcats Surprised

By UPI Kentucky's Wildcats ran into Tennessee's New York-bred "Bernie and Ernie Show" Saturday night and as a result, Alabama holds a one-game lead today in the red-hot Southeastern Conference basketball race.

Thanks to a combined 53 points from New York City transplants Ernie Grunfeld and Bernard King, Tennessee upset fifth-ranked Kentucky 103-98 and knocked the Wildcats out of a first place tie in the SEC with sixth-rated Alabama, which was putting away Mississippi 88-79.

"It was one of the great victories in Tennessee basketball history," said Tennessee coach Ray Mears, "especially considering King's injury and the fact that we had lost three in a row." (King missed practice all week with a knee injury and was a doubtful starter for the Kentucky game).

SHS Game Earlier

The DCSL varsity basketball game between Saugerties High and Our Lady of Lourdes will be played Tuesday 3 p.m. instead of 6:30 as previously announced at Saugerties.

Goodyear's new All-Weather 78 is built with polyester cord that's first tempered in an exclusive Goodyear process to set the cord at optimum strength and resilience. The wide 78-series tread is "reversed molded," a technique borrowed from race tire production. In reverse molding, the contour of the tread surface is slightly concave as it comes from the mold—so that when the tire is inflated, the tread makes full, flat contact with the road. And the rib-type tread design is well grooved, with plenty of traction edges to provide decisive grip. In every detail, this new All-Weather 78 gives you honest quality, at a price that's in step with the time.

Masterpieces Stolen From Milan Museum

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — Thieves stole 28 paintings by modern masters from a Milan museum today in Italy's second big art theft of the year.

Police said the loot included works by Paul Cezanne, Pierre Auguste Renoir and Vincent Van Gogh. An expert said their value was "very high" but he did not name a figure.

Police said the thieves apparently entered the Milan Modern Art Gallery between 4 and 6:30 a.m. through a window not covered by the museum's alarm system and eluded night watchmen making the rounds of the building.

The heist came 11 days after the still unsolved theft of one Raphael and two Piero Della Francesca paintings from the Ducal Palace museum in Urbino, described by some experts as the biggest art theft in modern Italy.

Officials of the Modern Art Gallery said the latest stolen works included Cezanne's "Thieves and Donkey," Renoir's "Seaside Promenade" and Van Gogh's "Brittany Women."

Also among the loot were Paul Gauguin's "Brittany Landscape," a landscape by Alfred Sisley and works by 14 other painters, including Camille Corot, Francois Millet, Giovanni Fattori, Telemaco Signorini and Giovanni Segantini.

Police last week arrested two men in connection with the Urbino theft but later released one for lack of evidence and charged the other with slander.

The Urbino paintings, which experts described as too well known to be saleable anywhere in the world, are still missing. Contrary to early speculation that they were stolen for ransom, the government has said it received no genuine ransom request.

The Central Institute of Restoration in Rome warned the thieves the Urbino paintings—Raphael's "Mute Woman" and Della Francesca's "Flagellation" and "Madonna of Senigallia"—were extremely delicate. They said they must be wrapped in velvet and polystyrene foam and kept at given temperature and moisture to keep the paint from peeling.

Art thefts from poorly guarded museums and churches are an almost daily occurrence in Italy. Police recently estimated 5,843 art objects were stolen in 1972, 8,520 in 1973 and 10,952 last year.

Dr. Thompson, Vassar Dean, Dead at 93

A native of Atlanta, Miss Thompson was dean of Vassar for 25 years. She also headed the history department.

While in her 70s, Miss Thompson was named dean of women at the College of Free Europe in Strasbourg, a school whose students were exiles from Communist countries.

She was the only woman member of the American delegation to the Conference of Allied Ministers of Education, which was held in war-torn London in 1942.

She also was a delegate to the 1945 London conferences during which the United Nations Education, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) was founded. Mrs. Thompson helped draft the UNESCO charter.

Frances Thomas Dies, Wife of Newscaster

PAWLING, N.Y. (UPI) — Frances Ryan Thomas, the wife of newscaster Lowell Thomas Sr., died Sunday following a lengthy illness. She was 81.

For many years, Frances Thomas was a well-known hostess whose guests included four U.S. Presidents and an almost endless list of governors, senators, ambassadors, Supreme Court justices, military personalities and explorers.

Although her husband has explored the world, she also was widely traveled. When asked once where she hadn't been, she replied, "Tommy says he has been to Outer Mongolia but not to Inner Mongolia. I haven't been there either."

Mrs. Thomas was born at Hot Springs, S.D., and spent almost her entire youth in Denver where she was a classmate of Mamie Eisenhower.

She and her husband were married in 1917. From 1918 to 1924 she toured the Middle East with her husband, who, in pictures and words, brought to the world's attention the exploits of "Lawrence of Arabia" and the account of Allenby's victory over the Turks, including the capture of Jerusalem.

During this time, Mrs. Thomas helped her husband devise the first live prologue ever used in connection with motion pictures. And as he spoke of the experiences, she handled box office affairs for him.

To gather material in his work, Thomas and his wife resorted to flying. At one time in the 1920s, after flying throughout Europe, North Africa and Asia Minor, they jointly held the record for the number of air passenger miles.

For more than 50 years, Mrs. Thomas heard her husband speak hundreds of

Conservatives Move Toward Independence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Conservatives, feeling left out by both Republicans and Democrats, have taken "the first step" toward creation of their own political party for 1976.

The Conservative Political Action Conference voted overwhelmingly for a 13-member "committee on conservative alternatives" to "review and assess the current political situation and to develop future opportunities."

The committee, including three Republican members of Congress and several GOP officials, was empowered to call another meeting if necessary "to chart more explicitly the future course of conservatism."

The only opposition in Sunday's brief debate on the resolution by more than 200 delegates who stayed to the end of the four-day meeting was a concern that conservative Democrats and representatives of such parties as the American and Libertarian were being ignored.

But M. Stanton Evans, chairman of the American Conservative Union and editor of the Indianapolis News, assured delegates no one was going to be frozen out.

"This leaves the third party option open," Evans said. "We have to take the first step."

Sources said Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., is expected to head the committee. The other GOP congressman on the group are Reps. Robert Bauman of Maryland and John Ashbrook of Ohio, who headed a brief conservative challenge to Richard Nixon in 1972.

The resolution said "conservatives have been forced into a political position which leaves us without a serious leadership role in either major political party, and the question of our allegiance to these political parties is a matter of increasing doubt to conservatives."

"The present national leadership of the Republican Party has not effectively articulated or represented the conservative sentiment of the vast majority of Republicans and millions of Democrats are alienated by the increasingly radical orientation of the Democratic party."

The conference debated a number other resolutions on domestic issues ranging from foreign policy to "big government."

The resolutions included recommending an anti-abortion amendment to the Constitution, a ban on welfare assistance "to able bodied and childless couples between the ages of 18 and 65," acceleration of the B1 bomber and the Trident submarine and missile programs, and an end to "forced busing of students to achieve racial balance."

But now getting rid of the dead birds may be a problem. "It looks like the birds that did die will be left to be eaten by other animals," said a local member of the Audubon Society. ## Bag 200,000 Birds; Only Scratched Surface

PADUCAH, Ky. (UPI) — Nearly 200,000 birds lay dead. But a mass extermination project has done little to eliminate an estimated 1.5 million blackbirds that city officials say present a health hazard.

"There's still an unbelievable number of birds remaining," said Paducah City Manager William Howerton Sunday. "It doesn't look like we made a dent in killing them. There's still plenty flying around."

A plane flying at tree-top level Saturday night sprayed the birds with 800 gallons of the chemical Tergitol.

The soapy chemical removes the protective oil from the birds' feathers, causing many to die from exposure to freezing rain.

But now getting rid of the dead birds may be a problem.

"It looks like the birds that did die will be left to be eaten by other animals," said a local member of the Audubon Society. "I think if you just keep the public out of here and just let them disintegrate, it would be better," she said. The extermination project was initiated after the birds refused to leave the area, despite persistent efforts from residents to shoo them with loud noises.

Doctors say bird droppings cause a disease known as histoplasmosis, which attacks the respiratory system, and in some cases can cause blindness.

A similar problem exists at Ft. Campbell, Ky., eighty miles southeast.

Despite the limited success in Paducah, Army officials at Ft. Campbell, are considering a similar attack on millions of birds roosting on their military reservation.

But the Pentagon wants to be sure the chemical is not hazardous to humans.

"We expect some type of decision for a go-ahead today or Tuesday, at the latest," said George Atkins, mayor of Hopkinsville, which is located near Ft. Campbell.

"The Army is still consulting with impartial scientists, some here in Kentucky, going over its bird-killing plan using the spray to make sure that it's sound," said Atkins. "If action by the Army is not expedient, we'll be very disappointed."

Home Destroyed By Fire

WEST SAUGERTIES — A one-story home on Pine Tree Lane in West Saugerties was destroyed by fire Sunday night despite the efforts of Centerville firemen.

Fire fighters were called to the scene at about 8:30 p.m. by the owner, Ernest Ingrassia, who noticed the blaze while across the road at his son's home, fire officials said. When firemen arrived the house was already fully engulfed in flame. The building was described as "completely gutted."

Some 36 firemen were at the scene. The cause of the blaze was undetermined. There were no injuries.

Seek Summit On Mideast

MOSCOW (UPI) — Britain and the Soviet Union called today for a summit meeting to wind up the European Security Conference and for the early resumption of the Geneva talks on the Middle East.

A joint communique said the four-day visit of British Prime Minister Harold Wilson marked "the opening of a new phase" in Anglo-Soviet relations.

Wilson and Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev, in a Kremlin ceremony televised live, signed documents providing for regular political consultations and cooperation in trade, technology and public health. They also signed a declaration demanding urgent efforts to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

The communique said the talks were held "in a businesslike and friendly atmosphere and in a spirit of mutual respect."

Relations between the two countries were cool after Britain expelled more than 100 Soviet diplomats in 1971 on spying charges.

Wilson arrived last Thursday and his visit was marked by the reappearance of Brezhnev in public after 51 days in seclusion during which he was sick.

Wilson scheduled a flight back to London after a news conference later today.

Your financial and material prospects are very promising today. A channel of a confidential nature will open to add to your resources.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Don't be hesitant to ask favors from friends in a position to help. However, request nothing more than you would if the roles were reversed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Something important will be achieved. You'll get most of the credit, though a lot of behind-the-scenes effort made it possible.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Persons with whom you associate today will have an enormous influence on your outlook. Select companions who are optimistic and active.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A higher value than usual will now be placed upon your talents by others. Ask a top price for what you have to offer.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A big decision you'll make will be the right one, but circumstances beyond your control will also affect its outcome.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Something profitable will come to you through one of your associations. It will be in payment of a service you've rendered.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) On-the-spot decisions you make today will prove lucky for you. This doesn't mean you should discard sound plans for hunches.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Set yourself a material goal — something that you want for your family. You'll be stimulated to greater efforts, earnings wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll be fortunate today in dealings with those of the opposite sex, especially if you turn the charm on full-blast.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone is going to give you something for your home that he no longer needs. You'll have just the right spot for it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You have a very convincing manner about you today. You will kindle enthusiasm in others when you discuss your ideas.

COMMON LAW? (Q.) My sister, who is 17, and her boy friend say they are going to have a common law marriage, that there is nothing wrong in it and people don't frown on it. Can you say anything to help?—Troubled in Texas

(A.) Your sister will have much less security under the common law than she will have if she and her boy friend get a license and are married by a minister or a justice of the peace.

Her children will be subject to unkind comments from other children (and adults too). This could damage them badly.

What your sister and her boy friend think people will think about common law marriage (and other arrangements short of legal wedlock) simply is NOT correct. They are shouting in the dark.

WEEKEND NO: (Q.) I will be 18 in two months but I can't date guys on Friday or Saturday. I am a senior and guys are asking me all the time. I hate to say no. My grades are good and I am trustworthy, but my mom thinks only grown people should go out on weekends.—Stuck in Alabama

(A.) Your mother has a strange notion. Maybe your parents go out on weekends and you are needed at home for babysitting. If that is the case, try to get them to alternate with you—they going out one weekend night and you the other.

For high school senior girl weekend nights are very important. There never again will be nights like those. Stress this fact in your discussions with your mother.

Oswald: "They sure like to gamble in Nevada. North's two-club bid was artificial and forcing. South's two diamonds a negative response and I guess that when South finally bid five diamonds he sounded like a dying duck."

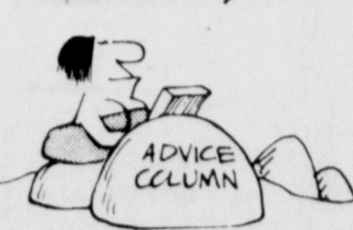

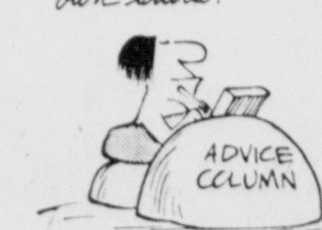

Jim: "Joe led the spade king, looked over dummy and promptly shifted to the nine of hearts. Five minutes later South had gone up with dummy's ace of hearts, come to his hand with a club, led the three of diamonds and finessed dummy's nine. East was surprised to find his ten of diamonds gathering in a trick, but not too surprised to lead a heart to his partner's king."

Oswald: "South's play was rather illogical, yet not completely so. Joe might well have doubled with the ace-king of spades a singleton heart and five diamonds to the ten. Incidentally, when you next see Joe suggest to him that he should rest on his laurels and not try any more doubles like this one."

Air Cover for North Sea Oil Rig

Royal Air Force jet fighter from base at Waddington, England, flies protectively over oil rig located 90 miles east of Aberdeen. Minister of State for Defense William Rodgers said RAF is providing up to four aircraft for surveillance duty over the vast British oil fields in the North Sea. Warships from the British Navy will also patrol protectively. Fear of sabotage to the oil rigs by Palestinian Arabs is the reason for the newly announced air and sea patrols. (UPI)

CIA Never Approached Being American Gestapo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ray Cline, a former leader of the nation's intelligence community, says the Central Intelligence Agency may have committed some "errors of judgment" — but that it never approached being an American Gestapo.

"The errors were few and they did not constitute any political danger to this country," Cline said in an interview. "The CIA never was close to being an American Gestapo."

"If we destroy the CIA, as we are coming close to doing, we will be as naked as we were at the outbreak of World War II when the United States was completely unprepared to act as a great power," he added.

Cline, the CIA's deputy director for intelligence and later director of the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence and Research, commented on the CIA and its future outlook as presidential and congressional investigations into the U.S. intelligence community move forward.

Three high-ranking CIA employees who retired at the end of 1974 were scheduled to testify today before the Presidential Commission on CIA Activities headed by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller.

They included former CIA security director Howard Osborn, N. Scott Miller, former chief of operations, and Raymond Rocca, who was deputy chief of the agency's counterintelligence staff.

The House of Representatives this week likely will establish a select investigative committee on intelligence activities. Sen. Frank Church, chairman of the Senate's panel, called a second organizational meeting for Tuesday.

"I don't think the investigations are going to turn up anything new," Cline said. "They may find another dozen cases of questionable judgment, but I'm not sure of that. I think that substantially we already know the story."

Cline clarified a disclosure which Director William Colby made to the Senate Appropriations Committee, that the CIA infiltrated about a dozen agents into the antiwar movement in the United States. Domestic spying is a violation of the CIA charter.

The object, said Cline, was not so much to spy on dissident circles as to have agents as "bait" for Soviet intelligence. The CIA hoped the "plants" could be recruited by Soviet intelligence and act as double agents, reporting on any foreign manipulation of the antiwar movement.

Presidents Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon were "absolutely obsessed" with idea that Moscow was abetting the U.S. radicals, Cline said.

Cline said the effort to infiltrate the American dissident groups was probably an error of judgment, in retrospect, because its purpose "was ambiguous and therefore subject to criticism."

Spiro, Laird Primary Targets of Radical Group

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A member of the radical Weatherman group was quoted by the Berkeley Tribe as saying of Larry Grathwohl: "If he wasn't a pig, there was a good chance he'd turn into an outcast revolutionary leader."

The 22-year-old Vietnam veteran who joined a Weatherman collective in Cincinnati in October, 1969 was a "pig" — an FBI informer.

In April, 1970, he was arrested in New York with two underground revolutionary leaders, Dianne Donghi and Linda Evans. Two days ago, his testimony to the Senate Internal Security Committee Oct. 18 was made public. It tells of Weatherman plans in 1970 to kidnap and possibly murder top government officials.

The primary targets, he said, were former Vice President Spiro Agnew and former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird. Secondary targets were Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, then a member of the National Security Council, and Ron Ziegler, then White House press secretary.

The testimony says Grathwohl went to work for the FBI after joining the Weathermen. He said he undertook the mission because the radicals sometimes were trained in North Vietnam and Cuba and were communists and he considered them "dangerous."

When asked what the Weather Underground intended to do with the victims, Grathwohl told the committee:

"Primarily kidnapping, although murder ... or assassination was considered, especially for Laird and Agnew, although those two were obviously the ordinary subjects for kidnapping and ransom at the same time. "So, then the other two,

Ziegler and Kissinger, were primarily kidnapping ... Well, like I said, Agnew and Laird was kind of a tossup, you know, you might knock them off and you might kidnap them. It depended on how you felt that day."

After the arrests, the Weathermen concluded that Grathwohl was an informer and spread the word about the country. An article in the Berkeley Tribe of Aug. 21, 1970, describes his involvement.

It said he removed initial doubts about his loyalty by taking an "acid test" with members of the collectives and, while on LSD, telling them: "I am a pig — I'm a pig because of what I did in Vietnam; because I stood by and saw the brutality of what was being done to innocent people ..."

Senator Bentsen's Hat in Ring for 1976

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas announced today he will run for the Democratic presidential nomination, saying President Ford had let the nation drift "from crisis to crisis."

Bentsen, 54, a millionaire former business magnate, made his long-expected announcement in the historic Senate caucus room where numerous candidates have launched their formal campaigns.

In a prepared statement, Bentsen pledged to run "an energetic, national campaign" and said he will bring to it "leadership which is at once candid, unafraid, and positive."

Bentsen, who served three terms in the House, turned to a successful business career and then was elected to the Senate in 1970, is the fifth Democrat to formally announce for the 1976 presidential race.

The others are Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia, and former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma. Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama is considered almost certain to make the race.

Bentsen said he was convinced Democrats will unite behind ideas "that can lift this country from economic recession and political paralysis." He said his party must restore "opportunity at home and moral leadership abroad."

"For too long we have been adrift," Bentsen said.

"This administration, which has been in office since 1969, has failed to govern with either wisdom or foresight. It has bounced from crisis to crisis. It has reacted to the problems of the moment. It is without specific goals. It is without sensible plans."

Bentsen, who tested his presidential ambitions in 36 states last year, said economic recovery was the "paramount issue" and added "that means jobs — jobs at decent wages with a chance to fully develop one's talents."

"Certainly, the most urgent need is to get people back to work," he added.

Bentsen said the United States must "remain militarily secure and a formidable world leader," but called for a foreign policy "which gives as much weight to interdependence as it does to military strength."

"Sadly, this world is not so peaceful a place that we can now beat the guns into plowshares," he said. "Rather, the world today is made up of nation states which fear each other, but which need each other."

Bentsen, like Jackson, spent more than a year as an unannounced candidate, working through a "planning committee" to raise funds and set up an organization. He collected more than $1 million and created the nucleus of an organization that could quickly move into full-scale campaigning and delegate hunting.

U.S. Okays Iran's Buying of Pan Am Stock

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. government has approved Iran's purchase of a sizeable share of Pan American World Airways, which is fighting off financial collapse partly because of soaring oil prices.

The okay was given on condition Iran would not try to take over the airline or interfere with its defense commitments. The deal must still be approved by the Civil Aeronautics board.

The proposal was submitted to the White House by Pan American last week. Although no official comment was made, sources said President Ford discussed the matter with his advisers.

The unprecedented deal would, in effect, allow the booming Persian Gulf nation, a major supplier of imported petroleum to the United States, to use its overflow oil profits to gain partial control of a major corporation. Iran said this was the first step in long-range plans to invest between $10 and $12 billion in the United States, mainly in agricultural business.

The State Department announced Sunday the U.S. government gave permission "in principle."

"What this action today does," a Pan Am spokesman said, "is give us a license from the government, if you will, to go to Tehran and nail down the details of the agreement and come back and submit it to the CAB."

He said the agreement was not yet "a hard and fast deal." Iranian Ambassador Ardeshir Zahedi said in Pine Mountain, Ga., that the agreement would:

—Transfer 13 to 15 per cent of Pan Am's stock to Iran Air, the Iranian national airline.

—Give Iran 50 per cent of the stock in Intercontinental Hotels, a profitable Pan Am subsidiary.

—Place one Iranian on Pan Am's 17-member board of directors.

Zahedi said he could put no dollar figure on the agreement. White House sources said it could reach $300 million. Industry sources confirmed the figure, saying Iran was paying $55 million for the controlling interest in Intercontinental Hotels and would also lend the airline $250 million.

Zahedi said the investment, in any case, would help the airline recover from debts which ran to $81 million last year.

Pan Am and TWA, the nation's other major international carrier, have been operating in the red for years and have repeatedly appealed to the government for emergency financial support. The CAB recently approved a route-wrapping arrangement.
